UNDERSTANDING YOUR MANAGED ACCOUNT

FACT SHEE

WHAT IS A MANAGED ACCOUNT?

A managed account is a professionally managed model portfolio of investments. It provides investors many of the benefits of direct ownership, while having the advantages of a professional investment manager to actively review and rebalance the portfolio based on the strategy and investment decisions of the chosen portfolio manager.

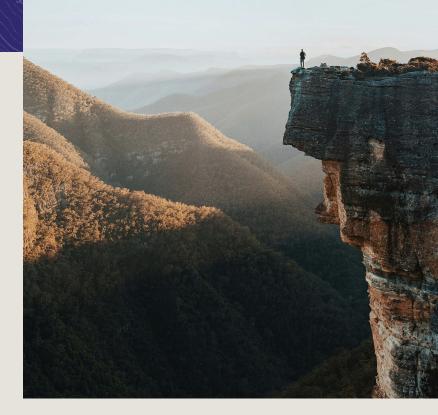

A managed account may comprise of direct equities, exchange-traded funds (ETFs) and managed funds, generally combined in a diversified portfolio.

Two ways to access managed accounts are MDAs and SMAs.

AN MDA SERVICE

A Managed Discretionary Account (MDA) service allows you to own a model portfolio with a pre-determined investment objective through your adviser. With an MDA service agreement, your adviser does not need to obtain instructions from you for each transactional change provided that they keep within the investment objectives in the service agreement, which allows you to save time as you are delegating the management of your portfolio to your adviser.

The initial MDA contract is designed and set by you and your adviser together. Your adviser then has the authority to manage your funds as agreed in the MDA service agreement, while keeping you regularly updated and informed of your investment portfolio.

AN SMA PRODUCT

A Separately Managed Account (SMA) is a portfolio or model that is offered as a product with a product disclosure statement (PDS). The unique structure of an SMA provides more flexibility to customise portfolios tailored to investors' specific goals and objectives.

Under both an MDA and SMA, the discretion to make changes to a portfolio resides with the investment professional not the investor.

An MDA service is managed by your adviser in conjunction with an investment professional. An SMA product is managed solely by a professional portfolio manager.
