Market Review

October delivered broadly positive returns across global asset markets, as investors balanced moderating inflation, easing trade tensions, and cautious central bank signals. Despite political uncertainty and a partial U.S. government shutdown that delayed economic data, equity markets advanced on resilient corporate earnings and optimism surrounding policy shifts.

U.S. equities extended their rally, with the S&P 500 up 2.3% for the month, led by strong results in technology and financials. Just over 80% of companies beat earnings expectations, averaging profit surprises of over 6%. Growth and AI-related sectors dominated, with growth stocks up 4.2% versus 0.4% for value, while small caps and real estate lagged. Investor enthusiasm for technology themes pushed valuations higher, although market participation remained narrow.

The Federal Reserve cut rates by 0.25% to a 3.75–4.00% range, confirming that quantitative tightening will end in December. Chair Jerome Powell struck a cautious tone, prompting markets to scale back expectations for further easing. The U.S. dollar strengthened about 2%, while Treasury yields finished little changed, with 10-year bonds near 4.1%. Credit markets steadied after early-month stress linked to several U.S. corporate defaults, and high-yield credit slightly outperformed investment grade debt.

Japanese equities were a standout performer, lifted by optimism following the election of Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi, who pledged pro-growth reforms and continued stimulus in the spirit of Abenomics. The Nikkei 225 index surged, supported by export-driven gains from a weaker yen. However, rising expectations of fiscal expansion nudged Japanese bond yields higher.

Across Asia, markets benefited from improving trade sentiment and China's ongoing stimulus. The MSCI Asia ex-Japan Index rose 4.5%, with South Korea (+23%) and Taiwan (+10%) leading gains, as semiconductor producers rallied on improved AI supply-chain outlooks. China's CSI 300 climbed 2.5% as the government expanded liquidity and relaxed property restrictions, though persistent youth unemployment and housing stress capped enthusiasm.

In Australia, equities underperformed, with the S&P/ASX 300 Accumulation Index up 0.4%, as stronger-than-expected inflation data curtailed hopes for near-term RBA interest rate cuts.

In Europe, equities advanced moderately. The Euro Stoxx 50 gained 2.8%, driven by luxury and auto stocks supported by recovering Chinese demand. The ECB kept rates steady for a third meeting as inflation fell to 2.2%, its lowest in three years. The UK's FTSE All-Share rose 3.7%, aided by a weaker pound and a 30-basis-point drop in gilt yields, as softer inflation boosted rate-sensitive sectors.

Emerging markets performed well overall, led by Argentina (+64%) after a pro-reform election result. Emerging-market debt (+2.2%) also outpaced developed markets, supported by high real yields and a softer dollar.

Commodities posted a 2.9% gain, led by industrial and precious metals, while gold regained safe-haven status amid geopolitical risks and record central-bank buying.

Overall, October reflected cautious optimism. Equities benefited from trade relief and resilient earnings, while bonds were mixed amid shifting rate expectations.

The Morningstar Historical Corporate Sustainability Score is a weighted average of the trailing 12 months of Morningstar Portfolio Corporate Sustainability Scores. ESG pillar scores are displayed as a number between 0 and 100 with most scores range between 0 and 25. It is the asset-weighted average of the company environmental, social, governance risk scores for the covered corporate holdings in a portfolio.
